Short description of university	The University of Algarve founded on the 16th January 1979, out of the union of two pre-existing institutions, the University of Algarve and the Polytechnic Institute of Faro, which makes it somewhat unique from most universities given that faculties and schools of both systems, co-exist. The quality and diversity of European Masters and Doctorates, combined with post-graduate courses open to students from all over the world justify the magnitude of this mobility. It is an important centre for cultural, scientific and technological development, with strong regional, national and international ties, offering students the opportunity to explore various careers as they gain transferable skills. In these last three decades, the University of Algarve has consolidated the link established with the regional business and with the public and private organisations, encouraging the transfer of knowledge and contributing to sustainable development with an impact across the community
